

TO MEET MR. MASTERS'S BODY.

HIS LATE ASSOCIATES MEET AND TAKE ACTION CONCERNING HIS DEATH.

ACTION CONCERNING HIS DEATH.

About forty well-known advertising men who represent nearly all the leading advertising agencies and firms in this city met in the office of Henry Bright on the fourth floor of The Tribune Building yesterday afternoon to take action on the death of

ELLIS H. MASTERS.

Ellis H. Masters, of The Tribune's business department. Among them were Mr. Bright, H. P. Hubbard, H. L. Bridgman, Lyman D. Morse, F. S. Gray, A. F. Richardson, Edward T. Perry, A. S. Douglass, C. B. Broomfield, Charles E. Ellis, C. H. Stevens, J. John Richards, W. H. Hays, D. H. Williams, J. W.

A number of letters and telegrams from advertising men, who were kept away from the meeting, were head, who were kept away from the meeting, were read after Mr. Bright had been made chairman and Mr. Hubbard had been appointed secretary of the meeting. A number of the men present spoke of the high esteem in which Mr. Masters had been held among his associates. The report of his death on the steamship City of Rome on Friday, it was said, had produced a profound shock. Mr. Masters was always ready to take part in anything intended for the benefit or enjoyment of the people with whom he was associated, and although he had not been in good health on Friday he joined with others on the steamship in a tug-of-war for the amusement of the other passengers on the deck. He was pulling manfully at the rope when he was attacked with heart disease.

aid, that flowers and special ceremonies should be permitted at her husband's funeral. On the motion of George E. Randall, a committee, consisting of Henry Bright, Charles J. Billson, Edward T. Perry, Frank H. Lancaster and G. H. Haukenbeek, was appointed to meet the body of Mr. Masters on its arrival and escort it to East Orange. All other special and general advertising agents in the city were requested to meet the committee at the steamship, which is expected to arrive on June 29.

A committee on resolutions was appointed, consisting of P. B. Broomfield, H. P. Hubbard and E. F. Birmingham. It is to report resolutions at the adjourned meeting Friday, June 26, at 2.30 p. m. Edward T. Perry was appointed treasurer.

HIS NECK BROKEN AFTER HE HAD CREATED HAVOC IN A TINWARE STORE.

A gray horse owned by Bernard Lefkowitz, a butcher, of No. 39 Bond-st., became unmanageable yesterday morning after being hitched to a wagon in his stable, at No. 39 Rivington-st. He dashed of the stall and ran across the street, plunging himself into the show-window of Conden's liquor store, at No. 29 Livingston-st. Lefkowitz managed to pull out the horse, which was badly cut by the shattered glass. The animal then, breaking away from the wagon, put his hind hoofs through the plate-glass window of Aaron Bernstein's tinware store, which was the glass door and entered him.

fore. He backed into the window and enjoyed himself by throwing out his iron-shod hoofs in every direction. It did not take him long to clear the window of all the tinware that was in it. Neither the shouts of the distracted proprietor nor the efforts of his owner to control him had any effect upon him. He kicked and snorted and backed as far as he could into the tinware establishment.

When there was nothing left for him to kick, he quit the window and pranced around on the sidewalk in such a way as to make it dangerous to attempt to get hold of him. In his capers he made an unlucky movement and fell headlong into the basement of No. 29 Livingston-st. His neck was broken by the fall, and he died instantly. With the aid of ropes the dead animal was dragged out of the basement and laid in the street. It is believed that the dog was suffering from blind staggers. The two Windows that were broken cost $250. Considerable damage was also done to Bernstein's stock.

THE TURTLE CLUB'S CENTENNIAL.

INVITATIONS ISSUED FOR A CELEBRATION OF UN-USUAL INTEREST.

Invitations are out for the celebration of the 100th anniversary of the Hoboken Turtle Club at Kingsbridge to-morrow. The festivities will begin with a breakfast at 8 a. m., and will end, according to the wording of the invitation, at "low twelve." The motto of the club is: "As we journey through life, let us live by the way," and so faithfully

As this motto has been lived up to at the annual dinners and breakfasts of the club from the time of George Washington down to those who are honored with invitations to partake of the club's hospitality have been looked upon as the most lucky of mortals.

trophy by Mitt is said that among the early members were no less personages than George Washington, Alexander Hamilton, Aaron Burr, Robert Livingston, Daniel Webster, Henry Clay and John C. Calhoun. Stories of the early days of this city have it that Hamilton and his friends were in the habit of going over to the Jersey shores during the season when turtles were plentiful and of bargaining large

When turtles were plentiful and quantities of this game, which was followed by feasts of turtle steaks and soups which became so famous that the Hoboken Turtle Club was formed. The great age of the club is attested by a season ticket over seventy years old now in the possession of Alonzo T. Decker. For nearly forty years the club had its headquarters at Hoboken. From there

He went to Claremont and again later to "Gabe" Case's, on the other side of Harlem. At one time it built a clubhouse at Larchmont at a cost of $100,000, but this proved too much of a burden for an organization of 150 members to support, and it was abandoned, the headquarters of the club being established at Klingsbridge Hotel, the property of William Suerb, the club's second vice-president. The man whose name is most endeared to the members of the club is John Tarbell, its caterer. Such is the fame of his recipe for turtle soup that frequent efforts have been made to have him reveal the secret of his success, but always in vain. He threatened at one time that in case of his death the recipe should die with him, but this was represented to him as such a cruel proceeding that he has written out the valuable recipe and it is deposited in one of the public vaults of the city to be delivered

The centennial of the club to-morrow has been looked forward to with keen anticipation, and it has been planned to make the occasion memorable in the minds of all those who will have the good fortune to be present. The officers of the club for 1896 are: William Sulzer, president; H. H. Brockway, vice-president, Alonzo T. Decker, treasurer;

FEATURES OF THE COTTON MARKETS.
In the local cotton market yesterday traders were realizing after the sharp rise of Monday, and prices at night showed a net decline of 10 to 11 points on near months and 5 to 7 on late. The same thing was true of Liverpool where futures, however, was true of Liverpool, which showed a small advance, while spot sales fell to $600 a bale at an advance to 4d. for middling. At one time August here sold at 7.64, which was three points over Monday's highest, but selling by a broker identified with the long side of the market for that month led to general liquidation, under which August melted down to 7.47, where it closed. The 15-day futures for 150000 bales changed

The general situation remained unchanged, with the drought still unbroken in Texas, no prospect of rain there and the exports of cotton keeping up steadily. The entire port stocks are now down to 27,099 bales. Exports so far this week have been 15,609 bales, while receipts at the ports have been 8,606. Sales in New-Orleans yesterday were 2,600 bales and in Memphis 500.

Hubbard Bros. & Co. say: "Locally, the temperance market is changing, based on the prospect of a general revival in business in all branches on account of the probable success of the Republican party in the Presidential elections upon a sound financial platform. Those of us who recall 1879 may perhaps overestimate the result, as do those in the South who have 1893 in mind. But we have for the last five years been so depressed that the rebound is inevitable."

PHEASANTS' EGGS EXCLUDED.

Mayor Rankin, of Elizabeth, has a servant named Miss Lowrey. She sent to her father in Ireland for pheasants' eggs to present to the Mayor. Fifteen eggs were forwarded, but they were seized by the customs authorities. The Mayor was at the Custom House yesterday to find out the cause of this action. He learned that the law prohibits the importation of wild fowls' or birds' eggs intended for hatching.

DEMANDS OF THE NORTH SIDE.

MAP SHOWING THE DESIRED RAILWAY EXTENSIONS SUBMITTED.

James L. Wells, president of the North Side Board of Trade, and George Gould, representing the Canadian Railway Company, were invited to a conference with Mr. Sirois at his office last Saturday morning on the subject of the extension of the elevated lines through the North Side, with a view to arriving about a plan satisfactory to the citizens of that section.

Mr. Wells again urged the necessity of extending the lines to the city limits, in accordance with the demand made at the public meeting last Thursday. Mr. Sirois, after acquiescing, Mr. Gould showed disposition to comply with the wishes of the north side as to additional extensions, and said that the company would seriously take into consideration the demand of the North Side Board of Trade for continuous transit, as the law requires.

Mr. Gould asked for a definite plan of routes satisfactory to the North Side, and Mr. Wells agreed, on behalf of the North Side Board of Trade, to have a plan that has since been prepared, and is now in the hands of the railway company. It will be presented at the hearing before the Board of Rapid Transit commissioners to-morrow.

ALLEGED PLOT TO GET EVIDENCE.

DAVID LINDENBORN HEARD OF IT. AND TWO OF THE PLOTTERS WERE ACCUSED OF CONSPIRACY.

Plots and counterplots in the warfare waged some of the large druggists and other auctioneers by against David Lindenborn heard of it, and the importers of the large druggist and rug and carpet importing firms were laid bare yesterday, when Leroy Andrews and his brother, importers at No. 263 Canal-st., were arraigned at the Jefferson Market Court on the charge of conspiracy. According to affidavits made by Benjamin Redler and James J. Cullen, clerks in the employ of Lindenborn, the object of the alleged conspiracy was to steal Lindenborn's sales books. Lindenborn was arrested recently on charges made by some of the importers, and an effort had been made previously to have his license revoked by the Mayor.

The affidavits of the two clerks declare that Leroy Andrews on May 5 offered to bribe Redler to steal Lindenborn's sales books in order that Andrews might have an opportunity to copy the accounts of the sales of the stores of the Redler firm. Redler made another appointment to meet Andrews, if it alleged, and then told Lindenborn of the offer.

THE TRIAL OF H. B. BEECHER.

ESTIMONY AS TO THE ALLEGED FORGED ORDER
— FRANK S. BOND ON THE STAND.

The trial of Henry Barton Beecher, son of Henry Ward Beecher, was continued yesterday before Judge Furman in the criminal branch of the Supreme court. Mr. Beecher is charged with forging the name of Frank S. Bond, vice-president of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad, to an application for insurance in the American Casualty Insurance and Security Company. That company was organized in Baltimore in 1888, and collapsed in 1893, with liabilities at $130,000. It was alleged that the company had taken in $200,000 from various individuals, and that the company failed all the while, and the $200,000, deposited at Albany. It was alleged that many of the applications for insurance were forged.

Assistant District-Attorney Weeks, in his opening, said he would prove that the system of bookkeeping of Beecher, Schenck & Co. was crooked, and that firm, he said, were the agents for an American Casualty Company. He said he would show that the firm had taken in $200,000, and that the $200,000 were really in debt $60,000.

The first witness called was Francis H. Burke, a business manager for Beecher, Schenck & Co.

With Lindenhorn's consent, it is said, the clerk met Andrews again and agreed to steal the books for $25, and the latter was sent to the prison as a witness of the transaction. Heller took the books from Lindenhorn's place of business the same evening, and hid them in his room at the Glenwood House, at the same time receiving $35, for which he gave a receipt. Cullen saw the books and money exchanged, he says. The money was handed to Heller by Andrews's brother, Cullen declares.

When Andrews and his brother were arraigned in the court, yesterday, the latter was asked to deny the transaction with Heller, but said that they had acted on the advice of the District-Attorney in trying to get the books. The District-Attorney Heller appeared for them and said their statement was true. Mr. Battle asked the clerk to produce the books, and the latter refused for further examination. Magistrate Kelleher granted this request, and in passing the plea of not guilty, he said that he would refer the case for the examination, saying that this could be determined upon later by both sides. It is probable that the case will be set out of court.

RESCUED FROM THE RIVER.

A POLICEMAN SAVES A MAN WHO SAID HIS ENGINE MIGHT SINK AFTER HIM.

Policeman John Quinn, of the 61st Slip station, had a hard time in the East River at daybreak yesterday morning with a man who attempted not only to end his own life, but also tried to drag the officer down with him into the river. Quinn was patrolling had charge of the rapid departure. The deferred forgery was put in evidence and shown to the witness. It bore the signature of Frank S. Bond, per A. S. 12.

"The witness was asked the application in the offense was the regular course of business caused policy to be made out. Francis L. Wellman, counsel for the defense, asked the witness if the signature was in the handwriting of the defendant. He said: 'I don't think it is,' the witness said.

"Do you mean that it was not in his usual handwriting?" asked Mr. Weeks.

"I don't think it looks like his handwriting," said the witness.

"Do you think when a man forges a name that he would write in his usual style?" continued Mr. Weeks.

"I don't know about that," replied the witness.

George Mackie said he was a clerk in the employ of Beecher, Schenk & Co. in July, 1903. The alleged forgery application was shown to him, and he said it was handed to him by Mr. Burkhardt, the previous witness. In the regular course of business, he made out a policy on the application. He recognized the signature of Mr. Bond might have been made by Mr. Beecher, but was not sure.

Charles E. Bond, president of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad Company, on seeing the application, said:

"I am not sure, but I have seen the signature of his post near Pier 8, when he saw a man rush out of the cabin of the tug B. T. Nelvick and jump over the rail into the river. It took Quinn but a moment to throw off his hat, hold up his arms and plunge into the water. The fringed man made an attempt to keep away from Quinn, and then suddenly turned and attempted to seize the officer, but Quinn kept out of harm's way.

"The two men struggled in the water, when Quinn managed to get his man by the throat and so held him. By this time quite a crowd had gathered onto the pier, and the fringed man, until he got close to the pier, and then he called to a rope. With this he freed his man, and the crowd looked him over. The man was a tall, thin, dark man, who was Patrick Murray, a sailor, and the enemies were trying to kill him. Several, he said, had been killed in the same way. The man was committed to Bellevue to be examined as to his sanity. Crossing the river of State street, he saw the crowd below, and, pointing to them, he said: 'There they are; they have come to kill me!'

A BOSTON GENTLEMEN ACCUSED OF CIRCULATING A REPORT DEROGATORY TO E. B. CUTHBERT & CO.

HEIT & CO.

E. B. Cuthbert, the head of the firm of E. B. Cuthbert & Co., stockbrokers at No. 55 Broadway, went to Boston yesterday and caused the arrest of G. E. Huntington, president of the Financial Information alleged forged signature purporting to be his, and the signature was not in his handwriting. He said he knew no one in his office using the initials A. S. B. In a cross-examination he said that he was that day in court for eight years, and corresponded with him. He said that it was apparent to him no one had attempted to imitate his signature. He received a telegram from President Miller, of his company, a few days ago, in reference to the case. The telegram was admitted in evidence but not read.

THE CASE OF THE NANTICOKE.

There is a possibility of an official investigation with regard to the steamer Nanticoke, which was wrecked off Sandy Hook in the storm of last Sunday. At the time the Nanticoke had about 100 passengers on board. It is said the passengers were panic-stricken on deck, that at a time the steamer was in serious danger of being swamped. When seen yesterday by Captain Fairchild, of the local Board of Inspectors of Steam Vessels, said: "The Nanticoke had no business to be out in that storm. She should not have taken those Newark excursionists out. There is not an excursion boat in this harbor that Sunday." He goes outside in such weather on November 13, and the Nanticoke was found deficient in tonnage. She is said to carry only 100 passengers, although, if fully equipped, she could carry 400 or 500. No one, it is said, was hurt.

has had ever called at the Inspectors' office has sought as to whether she has been properly equipped or directed. There were several deficiencies when he was inspected," said Captain Leonard, "and it was pointed out to her that she did not know whether they were allowed to or not, and, of course, inquiry will be made." One thing is certain, and that is that the charges of those persons should not have been enlarged as they were last Sunday.

FIREWORKS TRUST NOT YET FORMED.

The incorporation of the Central Fireworks Company, with a capital stock of $3,500,000, in the office of the County Clerk, at Jersey City, on Tuesday, was led to the mistaken idea that that expected fire works trust had been formed.

"John N. Blair, of No. 22 Liberty-st., one of the incorporators of the new company, said yesterday that the new concern was to be incorporated with no connection with the proposed trust. The location of the plant, which will not be in operation until late in the year, has not yet been settled on."

The information is said to have been corresponded to the company in Boston by its New York correspondence.

AN ART DEALER HELD FOR LARCENY.

Detectives Foye and Price, of the Central Office arraigned in Jefferson Market court yesterday afternoon William R. Leonard, thirty-eight years old of No. 1,788 Broadway, an art dealer, on a charge of larceny preferred by Henry Menchell, an artist with studios at No. 788 Broadway. Menchell told Magistrate Kutlich that in January, 1906, he gave to Leonard six oil paintings, valued at $700, with instructions to sell them. He alleged that Leonard sent the paintings to Boston and sold them, but never turned over the proceeds.

Magistrate Kutlich held Leonard in $1,000 bail for examination on June 22.

MISSIONS UNION'S LAST DAY.

THE PRINCIPLE OF TITHING APPLIED TO FOREIGN WORK.

AMERICAN SCHOOLS VERSUS FOREIGN MISSION SCHOOLS.—OFFICERS ELECTED FOR 1906-07.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE.]

Clifton Springs, June 16.—The Missions Union has been occupied to-day with the closing of its annual session, besides some special addressings, for seven solid hours. Considerable attention was devoted to the full and permanent establishment of a convalescent home for missionaries here in Dr. Foster's sanitarium. The buildings, which have been this year completely renovated, now afford extensive free treatment for the missionary service.

The Home Session of Tuesday is over at last. The regular abode of the Union here, in a large assembly hall of pastors and church members from all the surrounding country, and, although the session was somewhat curtailed this year to make room for other business, it afforded a discussion deeply interesting to all concerning methods and duties of encouraging the resources of money and taking other care of the foreign mission enterprise at the port abroad, and cautioned church members and pastors that entering into missions was no waste money already spent on missionary schools and colleges on the field, which an imprudent policy would have cost the young men far more than American schools.

A special session was arranged this afternoon at the Hotel Hamilton, for the remarkable story of the founding of Robert College, in Constantinople, and its securing the splendid site overlooking the Bosphorus, and by the man himself, the Rev. Cyrus Hamlin, D. D.

This evening the farewell to the missionaries who were going on their journey was given by Dr. J. A. Haddon, of Boston, formerly of Turkey. With this the present meeting substantially closed.

The following are the names of the International Missionary Union for 1866-9:

President, the Rev. Dr. T. Gracey, Rochester, N. Y.; Vice-President, the Rev. Dr. C. F. Johnson, Dr. Cyrus Hamlin, Dr. S. L. Baldwin, Dr. R. Rev. Dr. C. Penick, Dr. William Ashmore, Dr. J. W. Alden, Dr. J. M. McKim, Dr. J. E. Smith, Jr., Secretary; W. H. Belden, associate secretary; Mrs. C. C. Thayer, treasurer, and librarian, the Rev. Dr. J. A. Haddon, Secretary of Foreign Missions, denominations, Dr. J. A. Davis, chairman, the Rev. Dr. C. W. Cushing, the Rev. Messrs. L. Gulick, J. A. Haddon, J. M. McKim, J. E. Smith, Jr., Wm. White, Mrs. W. H. Belden, Mrs. K. T. Gracey.

The total number of missionaries who have been sent from this country since 1700 has been more than twenty countries, and were of over fifteen separate denominations. This is practically a record, and it is most interesting to note that there has not had a single indication of sectarianism in relation to end.

RECEIVED AT THE SUPREME COURT.

TESTIMONY FOR THE DEFENCE IN DAVID BELASCO'S SUIT.

Edward K. Willard, a banker and broker, was again in the witness chair in Trial Term, Part V, of the Supreme Court, yesterday, when the trial of David Belasco's suit against N. K. Fairbank, to recover $5,000 for making a star actress of Mrs. Leslie Bradley Carter, was resumed before Justice Gleeson and a jury. Willard acted as the financial agent for Mr. Fairbank in his many dealings with Mrs. Leslie Carter. He was cross-examined yesterday by ex-Judge Dittenhoefer, counsel for the defence. J. H. Gilmore, the theatrical manager, was recalled by Mr. Deming, who read over Gilmore's testimony, given last week, to the effect that he had some checks indorsed by Belasco in his possession until about a month ago, when he permitted an expert, sent by ex-Judge Dittenhoefer, to examine them. He said they disappeared after the expert had examined them.

Richard W. Morrison, who said that he was Assistant District-Attorney for Cook County, Ill., testified that on one occasion, in Kansas City, he went to Mrs. Carter's room in the Coates House. He saw Belasco and Mr. Price and then said in regard to a telegram in which Price had asked for $750. "This is a modest sum to me. He also said that he had been told that the 'show business' had been ruined."

FEES FOR RAPID TRANSIT.

Chief Justice Van Brunt, of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, signed an order yesterday fixing the fees of the Rapid Transit Commission.

Henry Rath Low.

Mr. Morrison said that an examination of the itemized accounts of the company showed that the box-office receipts for a month amounted to only $190.

"Afterward," said the witness, "I declared that this statement about the box-office receipts was absurd, and said to Belasco and Price: 'You people have made enough money out of Fairbank, and you ought to quit.' Price insisted that business had been bad, and I remarked to Price: 'You people are not going to get any more money out of Fairbank, have been putting the money in your pockets.'"

Finally Morrison said he got a draft for $5,890 from Chicago, and turned over the money to Belasco and Allen, and took from them a receipt.

On cross-examination Morrison denied that he had threatened to go on the stand and ruin Mrs. Carter.

"I said," the witness testified, "that if Mrs. Carter was not willing to give up the money she was trying to blackmail Mr. Fairbank, she would damn and ruin herself."

Court was adjourned until this morning.

John Claflin, John H. Starin and John H. Inman, at $2,000 each, and the Supreme Court Commissioners, who reported on the Rapid Transit plan, fixed the fees for Frederic R. Coudert, William L. Galsheisen and George Sherman at $2,000 each.

CAPTAIN MARTENS TO BE TRIED.

Police Captain Frederick W. Martens, of the Eight Thirty-fifth-st. station, is to be tried before Commissioner Roosevelt on Friday next on charges prepared by the Parkhurst society. Frank Moss, of the Parkhurst society, will prosecute Martens. The charges against him date back to 1891, when he was a sergeant at the Tremont station. He is accused of accepting $15 from a storekeeper, whose store he is alleged to have reported favorably as a polling-place for election. The matter came out before the Lawton Committee.
